SEEING SIGHTS ON THE SOUND.

Enthusiastic Reception in the Rain.

At Portland To-Night and
Boise To-Morrow.

Glenn County Vote.

Special to the GAZETTE.
COLUSA (Cal.), May 6.—The election resulted about as expected in Willows. Ninety deputy marshals and constables were on the grounds wearing stars and clubs. Two hundred votes were refused throughout the proposed county of Glenn, and over two hundred voted on certificates, which are deemed illegal. The result was announced in Willows in less than ten minutes after the closing of the polls. The Antis had election boards of their own on the outside with a full set of blanks, and kept a record of the votes refused at each precinct. Many voters in the town of Willows refused to go near the polls, disapproving the manner in which the election was carried on. It is probable it will go into the courts. The Divisionists carried the election by 262 votes, 1,574 votes being cast.

Welcomed in Rain.

Special to the GAZETTE.
TACOMA, May 6.—The President and party entered the State of Washington at an early hour this morning in a driving rain storm. This interfered materially with the arrangements for the receptions at various places along the road. It was 8 o'clock when the Presidential special reached Tacoma, and rain seemed to be coming down harder than ever. The party, however, were given a royal reception. They were met at the station by the Governor and Mayor of the city and a committee of citizens who escorted the party to the Gross block where a formal address of welcome was delivered. The streets on the line of march and the reviewing stand were handsomely and appropriately decorated.

European Finances.

By Cable and Associated Press.
LONDON, May 6.—An increase of the Bank of England rate is likely in view of the probable withdrawal of gold. Russia's angry over Rothschild's action in calling in balances in European capitals. Bourses are much disturbed remembering the result of such recalls in the cases of the Comptoir d'escompte and Barings crisis. Leading bankers are less apprehensive, knowing such vindictive action will endanger any further Russian loan while Russia knows her stocks are too heavily held in Europe, and that Rothschild's actions will cause permanent depreciations.

A Defaulter.

By Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, May 6.—A dispatch from Little Rock, Ark., says, the rumors in circulation there that cashier Brantley of the St. Louis Iron Mountain and Southern is short in his accounts, have, it is alleged, been verified. The railroad officials, beyond admitting Brantley's guilt refusal to talk, but from other sources, equally reliable, it is learned the shortage will reach $20,000.

Reduced the Duty.

By Cable and Associated Press.
PARIS, May 6.—The Customs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies decided the duty on wheat shall be reduced to three francs, the reduction to hold good for one year. The same committee decided the duty on corn shall not be reduced.

For Life.

Special to the GAZETTE.
FAIRFIELD (Cal.), May 6.—In the Superior Court to-day in the case of The People against James Thornton for robbery, on a prior conviction, Judge Buckles sentenced him for life.

Weather Report.

By Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—Forecast: Showers in northern California, except in southeast portion.

Important Land Notice.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 6.—Commissioner Carter of the General Land Office, with the approval of Secretary Noble, has issued to registers and receivers an important circular letter of instructions which shall govern carrying into effect the sections of the general land act of March 3, 1891, relating to cutting timber from public lands. These sections only apply to the States of Colorado, Montana, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Nevada and the Territory of Utah and district of Alaska. The important features of the circular are the following:

Settlers upon public lands, miners, farmers and other bona fide residents in either the States, district or territory named in this act, who have not a sufficient supply of timber on their own claims or lands for firewood, fencing or building purposes, or for necessary use in the development of mineral or other natural resources of the lands owned or occupied by them, are permitted to procure timber from the public lands strictly for the purposes enumerated in this section, but not for sale or disposal or use on other lands or by other persons; but this section shall not be construed to give the right to cut timber on any appropriated or reserved public lands; and the Secretary of the Interior has the right to reserve or revoke such privileges.

Persons, firms, or corporations who desire to cut timber from public lands for the purposes of merchandise, or for any other whatever, other than as defined in section 2, 3 and 4 of these regulations, must submit an application therefor in writing to the Secretary of the Interior, designating the lands by sections, township and range if surveyed, and if unsurveyed describe the lands by natural boundaries and estimated number of acres thereon. They must also define the character of the land and the kinds of trees or timber growing thereon, giving an estimate as to the quantity of each kind, stating which particular kind or kinds they desire to cut or remove and specify the purpose or purposes for which such timber or products thereof are required. Application must be sworn to and witnessed by not less than four reliable and responsible citizens of the State, district or territory in which the land is situated, and who reside in the locality of the particular land described. The petitioner or petitioners should also submit with the application such evidence as can be procured to conclusively show the preservation of trees or timber on land described are not required for the public good, but that its use as lumber or other product and for the purposes named in the application is a public necessity. If deemed for the public interest, desired permission will be granted.

In order that the farmers who desire to have the forests preserved in the interest of the water supply for irrigation, and all others having adverse interests may have due notice of such applications, parties making application shall cause to be published at least once a week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the State, district or territory, or where there is more than one county, in each, if the counties wherein the lands are situated and printed. A copy of the published notices must be submitted with the application, together with the affidavits of the publisher or foreman of each newspaper attached thereto, showing the requisite number of times and dates thereof. Cutting or removing any timber from public lands described in the application, by or for the application, before authority has been officially granted by the Secretary of the Interior, will render that party so offending liable to prosecution for trespass and subject his application to rejection. Saw-mill owners, lumber dealers and others, who in any manner cause or procure timber to be cut or removed from any public lands in violation of law or these rules and regulations, whether directly or by men in their employ, or indirectly through contract or by purchase, are equally guilty of trespass with the individuals who actually cut or remove such timber, and alike liable to criminal prosecution.

Kicked Out.

By Associated Press.
TOPPEKA (Ks.), May 6.—Commander-in-Chief Webb of the Sons of Veterans to-day issued a general order giving the result of the court martial of Walter S. Payne of Mortimer, Ohio, ex-Commander-in-Chief, charged with embezzlement. The verdict is dishonorable discharge from the Order, which is approved by the Commander-in-Chief.

Kentucky Failures.

By Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, May 6.—The bank of Allen County at Scottsville, Ky., and Welsh & Brown have assigned. Assets and liabilities unknown.

New Orleans Grand Jury.

By Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—The Grand Jury report of the lynching of the Italian held that the Mafia was a regularly organized body and had control of the methods of prosecution and that the bribing of some members of the jury was unquestionable. The citizens who led the movement against the prisoners were respectable and law-abiding, and it would be impossible to proceed against them. The jury indicted six men for bribing, and attempting to bribe the talesmen, one of them being detective O'Mally.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The report of the New Orleans Grand Jury upon the killing of the Italian was a fruitful theme for discussion among the people at the department of State to-day. It may be said the finding of the Grand Jury excited no surprise, for some such conclusion of the case was expected. The attempt to palliate the infraction of the law by offsetting an alleged attempt at jury fixing is deprecated by the legal minds of the department, but there is a well-defined opinion that the whole outcome of the case will be beneficial in its effects upon the turbulent foreign element of the United States, inasmuch as it will make clear to them the fact that they cannot rely upon treaties to escape responsibility to the great republic for their unlawful acts.

The report of the Grand Jury will, it is expected, reach Secretary Blaine in the course of time and figure in the official correspondence between the United States and Italy. There is reason to believe, in some details, it differs from the report made to the Department of Justice by District Attorney Grant, and notably in the matter of the nationality of the victims. The Grand Jury's report found eight of them were naturalized American citizens and that one declared his intention to become naturalized. Dist. Attorney Grant, it is believed, found one of the victims to be of Italian nationality, but he was an escaped convict, and that another's naturalization was so doubtful as to make it unsafe to hazard an opinion. So, at any rate, the Italian complaint would be narrowed down to at least two persons, although the United States has no naturalization treaty with Italy. The last named nation invariably through county has recognized our naturalized citizens as free from amenability to their native government. When the case of these two victims is considered the question will immediately arise, were the treaty stipulations with Italy broken? This question is likely to figure in the correspondence between the two governments soon. The Italian government is ready to fall reasonably into the usual diplomatic method of treating the subject, respecting which they took issue with another nation, unless it appears clearly the treaty has been violated. The Italian case falls to the ground, and leading diplomatic minds of the State Department maintain this fact cannot be made to appear. In Secretary Blaine's absence there has been no forward move in the correspondence. It is learned that Porter, our Minister at Rome, had applied to the Department of State for absence before the New Orleans affair happened. He has been constantly on duty since March, 1890, more than two years; moreover, the sickly season is approaching. It is entirely probable the request will be granted, as indeed would already have been the case, had not the trouble reached such an acute phase. Attorney-General Miller said he had not read the report of the Grand Jury, but declined absolutely to express any opinion in regard to it, or to discuss it or any of its features. Secretary Porter, when asked his opinion on the report, said he really had not had time to read it, and, therefore, was not in position to express an opinion in regard to it.

OPINIONS ON THE VERDICT.

LONDON, May 6.—The St. James Gazette commenting on the finding of the New Orleans Grand Jury in the lynching cases, says: "The jury did just what might have been expected and its findings possess polemical interest which, it is feared, Marquis di Rudini will not fully appreciate. If Secretary Blaine sticks to his guns, and insists on the constitutional authority pronounced on the issue, that the constitution provides no machinery for the government going behind the decision of the New Orleans jury, his position will be still more unsatisfactory to Italy than it was at the beginning."

NEW YORK, May 6.—Speaking of the result of the deliberations of the New Orleans Grand Jury, editor Barstow of the Progress to-day remarked: "It is what we thought would be done. It is an outrage that these men should escape for what they have done." Among Italian residents the same sentiment is expressed.

Arrived at New York, the steamer Nevada from Liverpool, and Westernland from Antwerp.

Verney Convicted.

By Cable and Associated Press.
LONDON, May 6.—Captain Verney, Member of Parliament, to-day pleaded not guilty to the charge of procuring the governess, Miss Bockett, for immoral purposes, but pleaded guilty to conspiracy to procure her. Captain Verney was then sentenced to one year imprisonment without hard labor. During the trial the court was packed with people, eager to witness the sensations of the case. Captain Verney, though downcast in appearance, pleaded in a firm voice. Counsel for the defense in his plea for the prisoner alluded to the prisoner's distinguished services in Parliament and undoubtedly sympathy was awakened for the disgraced ex-naval officer. The Recorder in sentencing Captain Verney said that he had come to the conclusion through the evidence given that the case of Miss Nellie Bockett was not the only case of procuration in which the Captain had been implicated, and therefore he could not lean towards the side of mercy so much as he could have done had it been an isolated case.

After Many Days.

By Associated Press.
WOOSTER (Ohio), May 6.—Henry H. Binkley, Harry Webb and Daniel Binkley have been arrested for the robbery, last August, of Michael Shelby—a farmer living near here—of $12,000. Shelby and his wife were bound and gagged by four masked men, the latter dying from the treatment she received. The men will also be prosecuted for murder.

Shot in the Neck.

Special to the GAZETTE.
HANFORD (Cal.), May 6.—Frank Sharples, a contractor and builder here, was shot through the neck this morning by George Turner, who has been a sub-contractor of plastering and cement. There has been a bad feeling between the men for several weeks arising out of unsettled business. The wound is not considered fatal.

Infirmary Burned.

By Associated Press.
MUNCIE (Ind.), May 6.—The county infirmary, five miles east of this city, was totally burned to-day. It is reported that four helpless inmates perished in the flames.

Further particulars of the infirmary fire show that no lives were lost. Loss only $8,000.

Gladstone Victory.

By Cable and Associated Press.
LONDON, May 6.—The result of the election held yesterday for a successor in Parliament, to the late Edward Greene, who represented the north-west division of Suffolk, shows that the Gladstonians have won another victory. Baron Stone, a Gladstonian, is elected.

Retaliation.

By Associated Press.
FLORENCE, May 6.—William Jacques an American from Newton, Mass., was out driving with his daughter yesterday, when a mob of people pursued his carriage, pelted it with stones and severely injured his daughter, who interfered in his defense.

Senate Committee.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 6.—The Senate Committee on Finance is in session here behind closed doors. The object of the meeting is to inquire into the workings of the new tariff, and at to-day's meeting the line of inquiry will be decided upon.

Met and Adjourned.

By Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, May 6.—A meeting of the stockholders of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company was held here this morning. No business was transacted, and according to previous agreement the meeting adjourned to May 27th.

Victims of the Helga.

By Associated Press.
ST. JOSEPH (N. F.), May 6.—Nine bodies were recovered from the wreck of the bark Helga, and one more was seen but could not be reached. The bodies were buried on the beach. The only survivor was Alexander Ellason.

Immense Loss.

By Associated Press.
PITTSBURG, May 6.—The Seventh street fire is still burning, but the flames are under control and no further damage is apprehended. Over a half million dollars worth of property was destroyed.

Schooner Foundered.

By Associated Press.
SAULT STE. MARIE (Mich.), May 6.—The schooner Atlanta has foundered off Sable Bank and five of her crew were drowned while trying to reach shore. The vessel was coal laden for Ashland.

St. Louis Strikers.

By Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, May 6.—The number of carpenters on the strike list is still further reduced by four more bosses conceding to the demands of the men. This leaves but 168 men out.

Crop Reports.

Special to the GAZETTE.
MODESTO (Cal.), May 6.—The crop outlook of Stanislaus county is not as promising as two weeks ago, owing to the continued dry weather and north winds. The growing grain is now in need of rain, and in what promised to be the biggest in the history of the country will be reduced greatly if rain does not come soon. The acreage is the largest ever sown.

GILROY, May 6.—The crop prospect of this valley is exceptionally good, and probably better than any preceding year. Wheat and barley are heading out remarkably good.

HOLLISTER, May 6.—The present season has been exceptionally fine for farmers in this county. The rains came in such a manner that an unusually large acreage was sown. From all sections of the county a large harvest is practically assured.

COLUSA, May 6.—The light rain last night benefited the late sown grain. There is some complaint of a little foul grain on the plains, but generally speaking, the outlook was never better since the bonanza year of '80, when nine million bushels was the output. The acreage shows nearly as large a crop along the river.

CORNING, May 6.—A fine rain last night, .55 of an inch fell; this rain insures the crops, enabling the farmers to finish plowing. Crops look fine. Much land is setting for orchards and vineyards.

MARYSVILLE, May 6.—Rain began falling about midnight and the farmers and fruit-growers are greatly pleased. The indications for a big grain crop are not so good as a month ago, but the rain greatly improved it.

SALINAS, May 6.—The outlook for the grain crop here is immense. The grain is all headed out and the weather could not be better. The yield of grain and hay will be one-third more than during the last ten years.

MERCED, May 6.—The prospects are good for an over average crop all over Merced county. Four farmers from Snelling and one from the west side to-day said: "We are safe. So far our grain is doing well, but a steady north wind for several days would hurt us. Up to date the northerners have been cool and have done no damage. Grain looks splendid."

CLOVERDALE, May 6.—The past winter season was most favorable; there is hardly an acre of land in this vicinity that is not put to some kind of crop. Growing grain is standing magnificently. The fruit crop is just as encouraging; grapes are coming out in a most promising manner. A great number of orange trees are heavily in bloom.

Violation of Neutrality.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 6.—Last Saturday, as a result of inquiry by telegraph the Collector of Customs at Wilmington, California, was instructed by the Treasury Department that there appeared no reason for his interference in the prospective transfer of a lot of arms and ammunition from the American schooner Robert and Minnie then at Catalina Island to transport for shipment to South America. Pending this removal it appears the Chilean Minister here received some advices from California regarding these munitions of war with which he called on Secretary Foster on Sunday. On the strength of the Minister's representations the Secretary sent another telegram to Collector Rubens which it is said at the department was to detain the Robert and Minnie. Secretary Foster to-day refused to give out for publication the telegrams that have passed between the department and collector with reference to the matter or to say anything on the subject further than it had been referred to the Attorney General for an opinion. The opinion asked for, it is said, is whether it would be a violation of the neutrality laws to allow the transfer of arms, etc., as proposed.

SAN DIEGO, May 5.—Early this morning the vessels Robert and Minnie were sighted laying off San Diego harbor in Mexican waters. A seizing party, who went out last night, returned without making an attempt to seize her and are now awaiting orders from the Attorney-General at Washington. The Itata still lies in the stream ready for sailing. The supposed Chilean warship seen yesterday, now turns out to have been the Panama steamer New York, which for some cause steamed up to the entrance of the harbor.

Fire Loss.

By Associated Press.
SIDNEY (Ohio), May 6.—Early this morning the shops of the American Wheel Company were completely destroyed by fire. Loss, $100,000. Insurance, less than $80,000.

DIED.

THE President of the British Board of Agriculture says that Secretary Rusk's new rules for the inspection of American cattle for export will not affect English regulations governing admission. The gentleman seems to be prejudiced against American cattle, as he takes the word of one expert against two regarding the condition of some cattle recently landed and decides that they were diseased. It is not to be expected that England, or any other country, should repeal its rules regarding inspection because we have set up an inspection. Each country will take its own precautions, but facts should govern, not prejudice. In proportion to the amount of the business, there would seem to be more pleuro-pneumonia in Great Britain than in the United States, judging from newspaper reports. The practices of England and Germany are different in this matter. Germany has absolutely excluded American meats until recently, on false pretenses, while England has admitted them under rigid regulations. Our claim is that her regulations have been administered in a spirit of unfairness to our products. Our own Government inspection should, in reason, be accepted as presumptive evidence of the good quality of animals which have passed it.

GOVERNOR PENNOYER, Oregon's great Democratic chief magistrate, made a side show of himself yesterday by refusing to go to the State line to meet the Presidential party, and when the party finally reached Salem he was not on hand and the Mayor of the city had to procure a carriage and hunt him up. He found him cross and sulky, pouting like a small boy who had been refused something that he wanted, but finally he consented to go and welcome the President to the great State of Oregon. The President, evidently appreciating his cold reception, simply replied that he was glad to make the Governor's acquaintance.

When the Governor finally got his second wind, so to speak, he did better and made a cordial speech of welcome however.

CALIFORNIA'S reception committee to the President rather overdid the business. So offensive were they in the discharge of their duty that they did not give the President hardly time to dress himself in the morning before they were on hand. By their action they have succeeded in displeasing every other section of the country and made lots of enemies in the city of San Francisco, and made themselves obnoxious to the President as well; but the President has visited the great State of California and taken his departure, and all is well that ends well, and the good people of California can now come down to the more stern realities of life and devote their time to grape culture and the festive scale bug, while the city of San Francisco will continue to grow great off the proceeds of Nevada mines and money. So mote it be Amen.

SECRETARY BLAINE completely disposes of the allegation in the last letter of Marquis di Rudini that he had, in violation of the usual forms of courtesy, made public a telegram communicated to him in strict confidence. Secretary Blaine points out that it was a demand of the Italian government it could not have been communicated to him in strict confidence. He further says that it was handed to him by Baron Fava without any suggestion or mark of privacy, and he has sent a facsimile of it to Minister Porter at Rome. The Italian diplomatic incident, from the declaration of Fava that he had only been permitted to return on leave, down to this last piece of disingenuousness, is evidently more histrionic than historical. Marquis di Rudini is playing to the home gallery.

THE Presidential banquet at San Francisco at twenty dollars per plate did not pay the bills and the reception committee are now engaged in rustling up the shortage. The banqueters evidently chambered too much "extra dry."

MODERN MONKS.

The New Order Established Within the Church of England.

It is now announced that the bishop of London has sanctioned the formation of a lay "Brotherhood of St. Paul," to work within the metropolitan diocese and be controlled by a warden, who will be under the jurisdiction of the bishop himself, says the London Telegraph. There are to be a subwarden and a chaplain, while the rest of the community are to be divided into brothers, probationers, and "serving brothers." The duty of the "brothers" will be to lead "a disciplined, devotional, common life, separated from secular pursuits, and wholly dedicated to the service of the church," in connection with the parochial clergy. The warden will be appointed by the bishop, to whom alone he will be responsible "in all things lawful." He will preside at all meals and all meetings of the community and will take care that the discipline and order of the community are strictly observed. He will "encourage, advise, and, if necessary, admonish the brothers." His decision will be final, unless a majority of the brothers bring the matter before the bishop.

Otherwise they must individually and as a body follow strictly "the rules regulating their studies, devotions, meals, habits, and conversation within the house." They are bound to "say the daily prayer of the brotherhood on rising and retiring to rest." They will be admitted as probationers for six months, and then as brothers, promising to remain for one year. At the expiration of that year they may renew for another year, and at the end of the second year they may either bind themselves for five years, or indefinitely adopt the plan of annual renewal. The brothers will contribute to the expenses of the community in proportion to their means, the amount of contribution to be arranged by the warden, and not in any case to be made known to the other members of the community; thus rich members and their poorer brethren will live in every respect on terms of equality. In summer they rise at six, have morning prayer at seven, breakfast at eight, and study and meditation from ten to nearly twelve. At noon there will be a service, and dinner will be served at one o'clock. Outside work will be discharged from two till five. "Evenings" will take place at half past five, and supper at six, after which comes three hours of indoor work. Every Wednesday there will be three hours and a half of "recreation" and one evening of the week will be allotted for receiving visits or going to see outside friends.

It is curious that nothing is said in the rules of the new community as to any peculiar dress. That will be the matter for, we suppose, the discretion of the warden, who will probably not insist on a tonsured head, a robe with hood and girdle and bare feet with sandals. These properties are too medieval to suit modern English ideas. The likelihood, however, is that these lay monks will wear something marking them out from the common role of secular Englishmen. The obligation they make on entering the brotherhood is clear enough as regards separation from the ordinary affairs of the world. Each man on entering will repeat and sign the following pledge: "I, in the faith and love of God, the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, desirous of dedicating and devoting my life to the service of the church of Christ, without let or hindrance, do hereby solemnly promise that for the space of one year I will adopt as the rule of my daily life the rule of the Brotherhood of St. Paul, and do hereby pledge myself to abstain from all worldly occupations, in accordance with the said rule, and to yield obedience to the warden of the brotherhood in all things lawful, so help me God."

MAKING CLAY PIPES.

How and Where They Are Manufactured—An Interesting Process.

Charles W. Maxwell of Strawbridge, Miss., in conversation with a St. Louis Star-Sayings reporter said: "It is popularly believed that all clay pipes are either made in Europe or from clay brought from the other hemisphere, but such is not the case, as a very large share of the clay pipes made in America are from clay found at and near Woodbridge, N. J. The clay comes by the earload and the first step toward preparing it for molding is to sufficiently dampen it with water to make it pliable. This is done by placing it in a tank, where it soaks for about twenty-four hours. It is then hammered with iron bars, thus ridding it of any lumps or dry chunks. Then the molding begins. The workman takes a lump of clay in each hand and by squeezing and rolling it molds the pieces into a rough stem about three times as large as the finished pipe stem, having a rough ball at its end. These rolls, as they are called, are piled on wooden trays, sixteen to each tray, after which they are dried, either by the sun or by artificial means, according to the weather. After having been dried, not to hardness but sufficiently to dispose of all superfluous dampness, the rolls are ready to have the stem drilled and the bowl formed. To drill the stem the workman holds a small iron rod the size of the stem holes, and with his left hand pulls the clay roll over the rod instead of shoving the rod through the stem. To do this the workman is guided solely by the sense of touch in his finger tips, and that sense is so accurate that the hole is invariably made correctly. The ball at the end of the roll is turned up, and then roll and rod are placed in an iron matrix which presses the pliable clay into the desired outside pattern. The matrix and its contents are placed in a hand press, and the workman, by pulling a lever, forms the hole of the pipe bowl. The molded pipe, still soft and pliable, then passes to the hands of the trimmer girls, who scrape off the superfluous clay, making the joints of the matrix. Then the pipes are placed in fire-proof clay sagger and the loaded saggars are placed in a large furnace. This furnace has eight flues at the bottom, and the six sheets of flame at the bottom concentrate at the top, thus making the heat even throughout. Until the pipes go into the furnace they are blue in color, but when they come out they are pure white."

"OLD TOM."

A Typical Character, Found in Every Mining Camp and Known by Everybody.

"Old Tom" was a character that lived in Eastern Nevada. He had drifted from one camp to another and located finally on the line of the overland railroad. It doesn't matter where, for every camp has a character of similar kind, hence his identity is a matter of no moment, and, in fact, as Hank Knight would say, it is entirely "immaterial." It was about sunrise when Tom sat up in his bunk in the cabin he had occupied alone for many months, long enough to be registered several times and known as a voter and resident of the second ward. Tom yawned and rubbed his rheumy eyes and blinked at the sunlight coming through the cracks between the boards of his cabin, run his fingers through his hair and wound up the yawn with a "y-a-u-g-h" and a grimace that indicated a bad stomach. He had sat around a card game the night before in a back room of the "Fashion" saloon, and was rewarded for being a general nuisance by frequent drinks mixed with design to put him to sleep and thus get rid of him. Tom had wakened early because he felt badly. It was a sort of yearning for the unattainable; but in Tom's vernacular his "coppers were hot," and in his philosophy, "the hair of the dog was good for the bite," and hence he wasn't long in deciding that he wanted a drink. So he threw aside the blanket, ran his fingers through his hair again, picked his slouch hat from the floor, placed it on his head askew, gave another yawn, and his toilet was complete, for he hadn't lost any clothes when he went to bed. He stepped out of the cabin and looked wistfully down the street. The doors of the "Fancy" saloon were open and Tom knew that Ned was on deck cleaning up the bar. Tom's credit there was nil, and he knew it, and hence he moved slowly toward it. Reaching the door he stepped in with the confidence of a cattle baron, but turned at once and looked up the street as if waiting for a friend. Then sauntering to the front end of the bar, he leaned over on one elbow and watched Ned breaking the ice into bits for convenient use.

"Mornin' Ned," said Tom, with a hopeless look of apology for disturbing the peace of the ward, "you know Ned had the reputation of carrying the sack at important elections."

Ned gave a muffled grunt, that indicated ill-humor, and kept on breaking ice. Tom watched wistfully awhile, and then changing position and leaning on the other elbow ventured to speak and said, "There's lots of 'em Grand Army fella's goin' by every day now to the Bay." Ned said nothing. Tom was encouraged by his silence and continued, "They ain't no better 'n my body. They tell about fightin', but shoo; they didn't do any more 'd a done. I didn't get to fight any, but it was just the same."

"Oh! what are you giving me? You wasn't in the war," said Ned, as he began filling a bottle from a demijohn tipped over his shoulder.

"Well, I tell you," said Tom, drawing closer to catch a sniff of the liquor gurgling from the demijohn; "well, it was all the same. I went out to camp when Colonel Connor was recruitin' his regiment at Stockton. He wasn't no Ginal then. He was the boss of the water works there, an' folks just called him Pat Connor; everybody know'd him; he was just ez common ez an old shoe then; but a military looking fellow on a white steed like he did when he wuz made Ginal."

Ned was wiping off the bottle and didn't seem quite so cross, and Tom moved along the bar to keep near him, and continued: "Well, I went out to camp to see my ole chum, wot listed about a month before; and he wuz on guard on 'em. I stay 'long with him, and ordered 'em to serve me with some ration, an' I et supper with him, an' had just same az he bed; corn pork, little fat it wuz—yis, purty fat, an' I didn't keer much fur it; en good strong coffee—wuz I had some—low—in a tin cup, en plenty of sugar, but no milk; no sir, not a drop, but not even en condensed milk, on some hard tack; that wuz all. En then he put me in the guard house for all nite, coz sum o' them green soljers wuz likely as not to shoot of a feller go over the line. Well, in the mornin' I asked my chum afur breakfast if I could go in to town, about a mile away, en he sed yes en kind o' smiled, en I started, en I went purty quick. En so I didn't do eny fittin; but I wuz in the war all the same, en—"

"Oh! here," said Ned, "take a drink," and he pushed a glass out with about three fingers of straight whiskey. Tom grasped it and raised it to his lips, when he noticed Ned's smirk of incredulity, and he said: "Fact, Ned, en thers an agent writin to me from Washington, en he sez he kin git me a pension of I'll swear to the papers. Here's luck, Ned," and Tom swallowed it and made way for two cash customers, while Ned said: "Well, I'll be blowed."

Deep Creek Railroad.

The Eureka Sentinel says: Parties from Salt Lake inform us that no doubt is entertained there that the railroad to Deep Creek will be built this season. It seems to be accepted as an assured fact. And if it gets to Deep Creek this year it ought to get along this way next year. The greatest tonnage for the road will be furnished by White Pine and Eureka.

More Dry Goods.

The dry goods house of F. Levy & Bro. is not behind the time in keeping up an elegant stock of everything in the dry goods line. The display of embroideries on exhibition this week is attractive, and embraces the most delicate and elegant designs. In other lines their stock is replete and will commend itself to any one desiring to purchase.

Cattle Shipments.

By a special train that went out this morning at 11 o'clock there was sent twenty cars of beef cattle to the Oakland and San Francisco markets, as follows: Six cars were consigned to Grayson, Owens & Co. of Oakland; four cars went to Hayes & Co. of Oakland; and ten cars went to M. Brandenstein & Co. of San Francisco.

S. Gammons.

Harbingers of Spring.

The editor of the Homer Index discloses a skeleton in the following manner: Now that the snow is melting, we can get an idea of what the people lived on during the winter. It is easy to guess how a man fed himself, by the tin cans, beef bones and other things that sprout from the snow around his house. But where all the bottles came from is a puzzle for us.

Superintendent Agler of this division was in town this morning looking after his company's interests. Mr. Agler is making a friend of every one he comes in contact with on the division, and is deservedly popular.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

A City Lady Who Required Proof Before Believing.

There recently appeared in the San Francisco Call, Chronicle, and Examiner, a proposition hitherto unheard of. It was an advertisement in which the Edwin W. Joy Company, in proof of the curative properties of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, offered to submit it to the terrific test of "no cure no pay." Many accepted, and their experience as so convincing as to be almost beyond belief. Here is another, written under date January 6, 1890—

DEAR SIR: I accepted your offer to test the merits of your vegetable remedy in sick headaches, and called for a bottle and got it. I had been troubled for a long time, and had tried nearly everything, with little or no effect; but Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla acted almost like magic, and the first bottle relieved me from one of the worst cases of sick headache ever had.

16 Prospect Place, San Francisco.

We will from time to time publish others of these letters. It is doubtful if any remedy was ever before submitted to such a severe ordeal.

Encourage Home Industry And obtain immediate and complete relief for your aching head by using Cephaline, the greatest headache remedy. Kept at all drug stores.

THE AUSTRALIAN SYSTEM.

Everybody in Carson Satisfied With It.

The Carson Appeal says of the election on Monday as follows:

Yesterday saw the first election in this State held under the Australian ballot system. In spite of all the complications people had in their minds over the matter, the thing seems very simple when you come to try it, and there was no trouble. It is decided by everybody that there is no chance for intimidation, vote purchasing or fraud. The election passed off very quietly. The old Board of Trustees was re-elected.

Death From Diphtheria.

The Chronicle of last evening records another death from diphtheria in Virginia. It says: Last night about 11 o'clock the youngest son of Patrick Rodgers, aged 4 years, 11 months and 20 days, died of diphtheria. The present warm weather is favorable for the spread of contagious diseases, and too much care cannot be taken regarding the matter. The Board of Health are using every means in their power to stamp out the enemy of the rising generation, but deaths are becoming distressingly numerous.

A Handsome Paper.

The Gazette is at last in receipt of a copy of the Salt Lake Tribune, descriptive of the Deep Creek country. It is a credit to the publishers, being a 32-page edition, and containing an excellent map of the section described, which lays just over the eastern boundary line of Nevada.

Generous.

Theodore Winters has a beautiful little two-year-old filly named after Miss Dolly McCone of Virginia City. "Dolly" won a purse of $400 the other day in San Francisco, when Mr. Winters handed it over to Miss McCone, who was an enthusiastic spectator at the race.
